

He'e

Aloha! My name is Loeo. I am a he'e, or octopus. Unlike humans or fish I don't have a backbone so I am called an invertebrate. I pride myself on being one of the smartest invertebrates! I have the ability to change the color of my skin which helps me communicate and as well as blend into my surroundings. This ability to camouflage allows me to hide from predators such as sharks and other large fish like ulua. I am important because I help to makeup the unique biodiversity or variety of living things in an area found in the reef.
